Introduction

Many churches receive revenue from outside parties seeking to use church space for various purposes, or alternatively, provide church space free of charge to outside groups or individuals as part of their ministry. However, third-party activities can bring associated risks to the church and to others.

Claims brought against third-party church facility users are not covered under the Anglican Diocese of Toronto Insurance Program. This means that an incident arising from their activities could result in a claim against the individual or group users, and in some cases the church as landlord may also be looked to for damages. Examples of potential claims include accidental damage caused to the church by a regular or one-time user group, or a slip and fall during a church user's activities.

For this reason, it is a recommended risk management practice for churches to require evidence of third-party liability insurance to be provided prior to use of church facilities. However, for many small groups and businesses, it is difficult to afford or obtain liability insurance because of high minimum premium pricing or unavailability of coverage.

In order to provide an easier, cost-effective way to protect the interests of Anglican Diocese of Toronto churches as well as third-party church users, Aon Risk Solutions™ ("Aon") offers an insurance program designed to provide low-cost liability insurance to church users. The program is currently made available through the Aon Anglican Diocese of Toronto Insurance Program account service team.

The policy includes an Aon administration fee, which varies depending on the applicable premium, plus applicable taxes. The administration fee has been added to cover the costs of processing the documentation incurred by Aon in the administration of the program.

Please note that these programs do not accept applications from daycare operators, nurseries, Montessori or related school operators, or other churches or congregations. If your business or organization falls within one of these categories, please contact the Aon Anglican Diocese of Toronto Insurance Program account service team for more information.
